Background information

Bio Suisse actively advocates social responsibility in organic production. This topic is also very important to producers and consumers of organic products, and social responsibility has always been a guiding principle of the organic farming sector.

Bio Suisse requires a social certificate/audit according to Bio Suisse Standards from farming operations in France, Italy, Morocco, Peru and Portugal that have more than four employees and produce vegetables, fruit or herbs. The same requirement applies to banana producers from all countries of origin, as well as to hazelnut producers from Turkey.

Bio Suisse social audits are being introduced around the world in stages. In the 2023 pilot year, Bio Suisse social audits will be implemented at operations in Spain and integrated into certification and sanctioning by the Bio Suisse certification bodies. The information note Risikobasiertes Kontrollsystem (Risk-based control system, not available in English) forms the basis for the implementation of Bio Suisse social audits.

No external social audits will be accepted for operations in Spain during the 2023 pilot year. The only exception is the Naturland social audit, which will also be integrated into certification and sanctioning by the Bio Suisse certification bodies.

Farming operations in the following countries that produce the products listed must provide proof of social responsibility certification/auditing:

Exceptions

- Operations with less than 5 employees are exempted from this obligation unless worker representation is possible through the group, like with GRASP for GlobalG.A.P Option 2.
- Operations that already have social responsibility certification according to Naturland, Ecovalia or Valore Social standards do not need any other kind of social responsibility auditing.
- Operations that are not or cannot be GlobalG.A.P. certified can apply for a derogation.
- Hazelnuts from Turkey: Bio Suisse can grant temporary derogations for social responsibility standards that do not fully meet ILO norms.

Confirmation by means of a Bio Suisse 'Social responsibility' self-declaration form

Operations that have employees, that do not fall under the external social responsibility certification/auditing obligation (as per part V, section 3.3.8.1), and that have 20 or more employees must fill out and sign a self-declaration form \(checklist\) supplied by Bio Suisse.
